“ I've known Andrew my whole life. My brother Darrin and Andy met at Corvallis high school during the late 70's. I was about 8 years younger but knew of and heard about all their shenanigans during that time period. When I was in my mid-twenties I bumped into Andy again up in Portland when we were both taking classes at PCC.

He and I got very close during this time period of the early 90's and I loved being around him. We spent much time together and hung out with my girlfriend Melissa, who also adored Andy with his great personality and cheerful smile. My mother Carol also loved Andy and they would talk for hours during this time period.

It was also during this time I was singing in bands around Portland and he provided some great inspiration for some of the lyrics and songs I was working on. Andy was wise, had a great outlook on the future and was solid in his recovery. He was slaying his demons at that point in life. Sadly, we we lost touch after that and I would only hear little bits like his run in's with the law or other small sound bites in the years that followed.

Then a week ago I got this sad news... and it breaks my heart. Andy was a great soul, a restless soul, a wild soul, and this world proved to be too much ... or maybe he was too much for this world. Andrew was love by many and left a positive mark on many of us, certainly those of us lucky enough to see his lighter sides. Be well brother ... hope you're finally at complete and total peace.

Brotha you're a star ... in the moonlight ... there you are ... take me ... take me back ... 'cause I can't walk ... no I can't make it.

Sunday, come and cleans me. After Sunday I am wrong.
Sunday, come and cleans me. After Sunday I am wrong....

That was for you dude. "Sunday Song"

“ I just heard about Andy's death from my brother, Jeff. I'm really sorry to hear it. I remember Andy as a kind and gentle soul. I've been out of touch with him for years now, but we were good friends for a while in the 90s and I have many fond memories. My condolences to everyone who was touched by his life.

“ I'm so glad I had the chance to meet Andrew and to be able to call him my friend. I will miss him very much, but will think of him and smile, every time I look at the beautiful garden shed he built for me a few years ago. Andrew was a kind person with a good heart. Rest in Peace, my friend. My condolences to the loved ones you left behind.
