“ I was just writing a birthday card to put in the mail to you when I had the thought to Google your name... And feel deeply saddened not realizing you passed last January. So grateful for the teatime memories that we shared. May you rest in peace my dear friend. ❤️

“ I knew Carolyn for about 26 years. She was a great friend who I enjoyed having regular weekly or bi-weekly chats with during most of that time. During the first decade of the 2000s I shared some very lovely trips with her to various destinations on the West Coast including her beloved Portland, where she had been a college professor. She was so smart, kind and caring (especially the way she cared for her mom, aunt and uncle for years until they passed), thoughtful, and generous. I cherish the memories I have of her and am so sorry her “weak lungs” and particularly her inner ear problems (which affected her equilibrium and ultimately led to her falls at home), eventually made it impossible for her to enjoy traveling anywhere anymore — something she loved doing — even to occasionally go to Portland to attend her beloved music concerts. R.I.P. Carolyn.

(I sorry this is so belated but I only discovered this website today, 9/14/24, by chance.)

“ I went to school with Carolyn and spent some good times hanging out with her along with her other close friends. She was very, very smart. Although she was quiet, she had a good sense of humor and was always kind. Rest well, friend.

“ I met Carolyn in 7th grade and went through high school with her. She always had this sweet, mellow vibe about her, and never flaunted her great intellect. I found this to be true years later when I ran into her at Portland State, where she was teaching language. I know she loved Corvallis, and am glad she will be resting there.

“ Dear Carolyn, I'm missing your faithful presence and friendship. In recent years, you always greeted me so warmly when you answered your phone. I was awed by how kind and caring you were for your aging ailing relatives. I know you, too, had lifelong health issues. I hope you knew how much I enjoyed and lived you. Blessings, Ruth (Sitton DeMaio)
