“ My deepest condolences to all of Curt’s family. I wish I had pictures to share –this pictures in my memories - especially the pictures I see of times spent with this incredible man. I can’t remember a day I did not see his smirk which he called a smile. The intense, looking right into your soul stare, the warmth of his greetings, and his unobtrusive way of demanding you be real.

I met Curt at college – we were both freshmen. He quickly became a constant companion to both my boyfriend and myself. Even after I broke up with my guy, Curt remained a steadfast friend to both of us.

What warms my heart is that Curt accomplished all his dreams: He found the love of his life. He wanted a true love and he found a true love. He wanted children and he had a family. He wanted an education and career, and he got that as well. Curt had a life he handled head on and he fulfilled his dreams. What I remember about Curt was that his happiness was being surrounded by people he loved and that loved him. He must have been a very happy man. For that, I find peace and I hope his family does as well.

Thank you to his parents for raising such a wonderful man, and thank you Vicki for loving him and giving him a beautiful life filled with love and children.

With respect and love,
