“ When I saw the fresh paint and realtor sign as I drove by Irene's house I knew it meant she must have passed on. I am sad to find this page and see it is true. For two years I was a caregiver for Irene through New Horizon's. I grew very fond of Irene in that time. I liked her stubbornness and most enjoyed the many stories she would tell me. Stories about the mill, her father, mother, and how much she missed her brother. She was such a strong woman. Being a single mother I was inspired by her independence in raising her son alone. It was inspiring how diligently she worked and supported his pursuits through medical school. Despite her faulty memory she was a wealth of historical information and I enjoyed our conversations so much that even after I had quit working for the agency I would occasionally drop by for conversation, bringing her flowers and an ice cream sundae. Irene touched my heart and will be remembered and missed.
