The world has lost a truly great man. Jimmy was so full of wonderful stories of his life and never hid anything. If you ever met Jimmy you knew immediately he was the real deal. He shared a lot of stories with me about his time spent overseas during WWII which had me in awe for the fact he survived! I will miss him terribly but I know he is with God and that warms my heart.

It was such an honor to have known this great man. I would sometimes try to imagine all he had seen in his lifetime. I loved his stories of his early life in Missouri where people still used horse & wagon to watching him navigate on his iPad. He loved life and was always open to new experiences. Grateful for his service during WWII and how he glowed when he talked about his trips to Europe to receive his Metals of Honor. His dedication to Della was one of the sweetest things ever; it reminded me of The Notebook. He was such a kind and positive person. He will be missed by so many.
