“ I will always remember Kris for her warmth and interest in me. I have known her since she lived in my church ward in Temple Texas where she was a member of the Relief Society Presidency for a time. After I moved to Oregon, I discovered that the family lived here as well so we got together to talk about old times. She died too young. I really miss her. I wish there was a longer obituary since she had an interesting life, living in Pacific Islands with her family and attending BYU Hawaii. Her casket had a bouquet on it of flowers typical of the islands. Blessings on her family left behind.

“ We knew Kris through soccer games our grandchildren played with her daughter, Katy, and son, Evan. She was a warm and generous person, celebrating great game plays from either side. From seeing Evan and Katy on the field and in the neighborhood, and seeing what good kids they are, it's easy to see what a marvelous mother Kris was. Her happiness lit up our street as we'd see her driving kids to and from, with a wave and a smile whenever she drove by. Our hearts hurt for Dave and all the Cassat children. Kris was a wonderful woman gone too soon.

“ I was room mates with Kris twice.

She was always full of energy and interest in life.

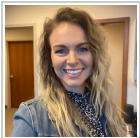

We had a neighbor next door that would yell and scream at his kids so loud...

Kris went over with a treat and got to know the kids. She would go over daily and help the children.

She seemed to look for ways to serve and help all the time.

I think she was the best of all of us.

“ I am eternally grateful that I was able to know Kris.

After I had my third baby Kris would call and check on me, she offered to watch my 2 older children more than once and brought us dinner as well.

There is something about Kris that is incredibly special. Whenever I was around her, the thought that repeatedly came to me was, this must be what Heavenly Mother is like. I have never had that thought about any one else.

*I will do my best to remember and honor her by paying it forward.
Thank you Kris, I love you!*
