“ I worked with Jay for 20 years in in healthcare, and we enjoyed sharing a light and comical banter often. He was easy going and often willing to step up and fill needed shifts. Even after he retired he remained on staff, and I will always appreciate that he continued to support the department by working so often when we were short on staff. On a personal note, Jay was on shift in 2014 when I was taken to the hospital by ambulance and placed on life support. It was a tense situation and it was reported to me that Jay chose to stay after his shift to assist the other technologist with performing my Imaging studies. This being after he had already worked all night. Months later when I returned to work, he came by my office to check in and see how I was doing. It was a kindness that he extended to his co-worker and to me, that he was willing to stay and assist in any way he could that Sunday morning, even after working his all night shift. I will always remember that show of support. Peace be with Jay and comfort to his family and loved ones.

“ I first met Jay in the 5th grade at Allen School in Bend, OR. And, of course, knew him from there until graduation from BSHS in 1969. My memory of Jay is of a gentle, soft-spoken person; someone easy to meet, easy to talk to, and kind. The one memory of Jay that always comes to mind was when he and his father, Richard, were building a fence in the backyard when I visited. I joined in, and we were each struggling with digging the post holes side by side when suddenly, we all three looked up at the same moment, realized how infinitesimal our efforts had been, and burst out laughing. Even though I didn't see Jay often after high school, I will miss his spirit.

I am so sad to read of Jay's passing. My sincerest condolences. Jay was a childhood friend and classmate that was known and loved for his talent and kind, gentle spirit.

Ditto Dan. Thought it was Kenwood though?

5th grade Allen, 6th grade Kenwood. Thanks, Scott. I had to look up old photos to verify and had a wonderful trip through memories.
