“ Jerry, you are in my prayers. Only time can lessen the pain of loss. Unfortunately time cannot be hurried. Take solace in your children and family but don't forget to take time for yourself. Don't feel pressured to act or feel the way others think you should. Grief is so personal and we all react to it differently. It will take as long as it takes. It is only natural to think we could have done better but we are only human and that means we will make mistakes. For now, if you feel sad, feel sad and if you feel ok, feel ok. Grief is our way of dealing with the unimaginable loss. So however long it takes and however we grieve, it's ok. May God bless you, strengthen you and may you find peace in your time of sorrow.
