“ I shared this on facebook today with my friends and wanted to share it here, too:

*I am heartbroken to hear about the passing of Tom Terkildsen. He was a Prince of a man and the husband of my high school dance coach Nancy. Together they loved and taught literally hundreds of girls so much more than how to dance. Tom had the patience of Job to willingly put up with hormonal teenage girls who weren't technically his own, but he always smiled and laughed through our meltdowns and crazy antics, while throwing in a life lesson. Through their steadfast commitment to mentor young girls, they molded and shaped us in ways that forever shaped our lives. Their example of how deeply they respected and loved each other was evident in everything they did. Tom was the quiet, strong force, while Nancy was the not-so-quiet strong force. :) Together they taught us leadership, respect, integrity, the value of commitment, hard work, building up others, a strong faith in God and to be accountable in all things. I love this man like a father and he will forever be missed by countless many who knew him. This is how you use your life for good. Rest in Peace with your Lord, Tom.
Much love, Kari*

“ Tommy,

Thank you for sharing your mother Mary Terkildsen-Williamson with Sherman and I. She truly saved our lives. As a family we shared a lot of laughter and practical jokes.

You were so fortunate to find a soul mate in Nancy Grant-Terkildsen and blessed with two sons. May you ski the clouds of heaven like we skied the Sierra Nevada mountains. Love "Sis", Nancy Williamson-Pengilly
