“ When I took my first teaching job at Alsea, Wanda took me under her wing, and became to me, a source of wisdom and guidance. The most touching thing that Wanda did for me, was she gave me her son's sleeping bag, an Army mummy bag. This made me feel extra special. She was a wonderful lady. Her memory will always be with me.

“ I will miss Wonda very much. I always enjoyed visiting and listening to her stories about when she was girl. Wonda told me she did tap dancing at the grange to entertain folks, she never had a lesson one but had a natural talent for it. The grange was on the hill above town about where the nazarene church is now. Wanda told me about her and a group of her friends skipping school one day in highschool and hiking to Grass mountain for a picnic. She told me of designing the blue prints for their house in Alsea, she showed me pictures of Cotton when he was little and we shared photos of students back in the 30's. I hated to see her move out of Alsea. Rest in Peace Wanda Hunter Walters
